

Find the Right Snowboard Size

Contributed by Dante Martin

You may have a solid grasp of the snowboard size that is right for you but if you are building a snowboard for someone else you may struggle with what the right size could be for them. This is especially the case if the rider's height is significantly different than yours and they don't already have a board size preference.

The Snowboard Size Estimator tool below is a small flash application that will allow you determine the snowboard size most likely to be successful for a rider given their height and the style of snowboard they are interested in. The size estimations are based on a study of professional snowboarders and their snowboard size preferences relative to their height and riding style.

{mosmedia}

{mosmedia}